HAROLD G. OSBORN, WEIGHING PEPPERS, TODAY

Walter McIlhenny, weighing peppers, circa 1965

We stay remarkably busy
FOR A PLACE WHERE TIME STANDS STILL.

It's a lot of hard work picking, weighing and mashing the peppers all in the same day, but that's the way we've always done it here on Louisiana's Avery Island. And the way we always will. We still use the same process (minus the jacket), the same ingredients and the same simple recipe we started with 140 years ago. And we still get the same result: a one-of-a-kind pepper sauce that livens up the grill today just as well as it did back when we filled the very first bottle in 1868.
